WASHINGTON (AP)—Three senators grappled in an angry fray today as a climax to an argument over Gen. MacArthur's Far Eastern policies. Those present agreed no blows were struck.

The "shoving around" was in a radio studio.

Senator Homer Capehart (Rep. Ind.) told reporters he pushed Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) out of a radio recording studio after Humphrey "called me a dirty name."

Capehart said he also pushed Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) back sharply when the New York senator tried to intervene.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep. O.) was the fourth participant in the radio program which was being recorded. He said no blows were struck and he did not hear any exchange of epithets.

"I am a peaceful man," Taft said. "All I did was to help separate them."

Last Ditch Fight Over MacArthur

Truman Administration Solid In Preparation For Coming Struggle

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—It looks like a fight to the finish between Gen. MacArthur and the Truman administration over the best strategy for victory in the Far East.

A surprise Defence Department statement Thursday night put President Truman's civilian and military advisers squarely behind his dismissal of the general. It was widely taken here as a display of administration solidarity in preparation for a show-down policy struggle. The White House authorized the statement.

General Draws Record Cheers From New York

7,500,000 Line Streets

NEW YORK (AP)—An estimated 7,500,000 persons turned out in New York to give Gen. Douglas MacArthur the United States' greatest welcome to a returning hero.

The estimate of the astonishing size of the cheering, flag-waving throngs that lined the 15-mile route of his 50-car motorcade came from Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy.

The sidewalks of New York were packed with a dense mass of hoarsely shouting humanity. Office building windows were jammed.

The almost unbelievably huge crowd nearly doubled the size of the 4,000,000 turnout for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

New Yorkers gushed forth from subways and others piled into the city on special trains and buses from Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Showers of torn paper and ticker-tape rained throughout the gaily-decorated city from Central Park to the canyons of lower Manhattan's massive skyscrapers.

Vessels in the harbor died down their whistles to add to the tumult.

As the procession turned up lower Broadway, the general climbed up on the back of the seat. Mrs. MacArthur and his son, Arthur, did the same in their car. The general waved both to the crowds lining the streets and to thousands leaning from windows.

The motorcade was joined on the trip along lower Broadway by bands and thousands of marchers.

TIMES TO CARRY AMAZING STORY OF 'STANE' THEFT

LONDON—Ian Hamilton, leader of the group of four young Scots, who plotted and successfully executed the plan to take the Stone of Scone out of Westminster Abbey and back to Scotland, has written the story of the daring adventure which this newspaper will begin publishing Monday.

Following assurances from the British Government no prosecution would follow, Hamilton, the 25-year-old Glasgow University student who will go down in history as "the man who took the stone of destiny," decided to divulge his identity and that of his three companions, Gavin Vernon, 24, Allan Stuart, 20, and pretty Kay Matheson, 22-year-old Rossshire school teacher.

Complete details, carefully guarded in statements to the press, of the bold plot and its many vicissitudes, will be divulged by Hamilton in 18 chapters. He had already written the story anonymously, keeping his name and that of his co-plotters a close secret. The governments promise of amnesty has made the secrecy unnecessary.

Prairie Snow Shovels Called Back Into Service

With snow expected to end tonight and sunny weather in prospect for tomorrow, Albertans, like this Calgary worker, today began task of shovelling white blanket from streets. Tricks of weather

SPRING DOWN BUT NOT OUT; WARMTH BACK

Spring, knocked flat on its face early Thursday, was up and doing again today.

A smiling weatherman reported:

"Clear today and tomorrow, and warmer." He dismissed a low of 38 tonight and said it would be 60 today and tomorrow afternoon. He added:

"The high pressure area is still with us bringing fine weather. No rain in sight for at least 48 hours."

The island fire hazard continued as the region went into its 23rd day with only a trace of moisture.

1. To convince a majority of Congress and the public that MacArthur's key proposals to take new military measures against Red China actually would create serious danger of setting off a world war.

2. To demonstrate that by his policy of a limited war in Korea the President has acted on the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

On both points, the opinions of military men are expected to carry great weight. The President therefore is due to rely heavily on the testimony before congressional committees of Defense Secretary George C. Marshall and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs. Earlier this week Bradley defended the limited-war policy.

Administration strategy in meeting MacArthur's head-on challenge is understood to be designed to accomplish two purposes:

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

CENSUS CHORES

BECAUSE CANADA is now getting the wheels in motion for the taking of the decennial census in June, I found much of interest—and entertainment—in reports of "Operation Census" as it was carried out in Britain on Sunday, April 8. On that day millions of Britons awaited the arrival of the census-taker with what has been described as the "grand-daddy" of all official forms of "gobbledygook."

As Sunday is usually considered sacrosanct to the British worker as a day of rest and recreation, the day on which he either stays in bed and reads the "funnies" in football coupons, or takes the "missus and kids" out for an airing, I can well believe that the lot of the census-taker was not a particularly happy one.

FACES WERE RED

IT IS 20 YEARS since the last census was taken in Britain, and in the intervening period many things have happened to make tempers short and householders harassed. So it isn't surprising to learn that the enumerators' faces got redder and redder at the cold, and sometimes infuriated, reception they received.

One question which aroused the most ire, perhaps, had to do with the number of rooms in the house. With the housing shortage so serious, householders over there are naturally fearful of compulsory billeting to ease the shortage, or requisition in wartime, and the poor long-suffering census-taker had to bear the brunt of their fears, often expressed by doors slammed in their faces.

BATHROOM BOGGLE

TYPICAL OF THE bewildering nature of some of the questions was that about bathrooms. To help the head of the house to grapple with this, the census form explains carefully: "Fixed bath means a bath permanently installed and connected with a waste pipe leading outside the building. It does not matter for this purpose whether there is water piped to it, or whether the room where it is installed is used only as a bathroom or not."

In other words, you can sleep in the same room, eat in it, and as long as the water runs out it need not necessarily run in to be a fixed bath—and bathroom—for the purposes of census.

WHO'S THE BOSS?

I CHUCKLED at some of the trouble encountered in the requirement that the form be signed by the head of the house. One Hampstead housewife icily asked the census-taker, "Just who do you mean by the head of the house?" As a married man, the census-taker in question cautiously "passed the buck" by suggesting she write the registrar to get his interpretation.

She took his advice. And the registrar-general's office received an irate letter from that particular Mrs. Milquetoast asking why the government automatically assumed that the husband was head man in his house and registering her very strong disapproval of such an unwarranted assumption.

CAUTIOUS REPLY

TO PLACATE the wounded feelings of the irate housewife, the census official wrote back a carefully-worded reply, regretting that its census forms "should be regarded as reflecting adversely on the status of women," adding:

"I need hardly assure you that no such reflection is intended. The registrar-general would not wish, even if it were possible for him to do so, to decide who should be regarded as the head of any particular household."

SIGNED JOINTLY

THAT EVIDENTLY satisfied the lady for, when inquisitive newsmen went round to see what the outcome of it all was, she told them that she and her husband had signed as joint heads of the household. What's more, she added that, while she refused to look upon men as "little tin gods," her husband was by no means henpecked!

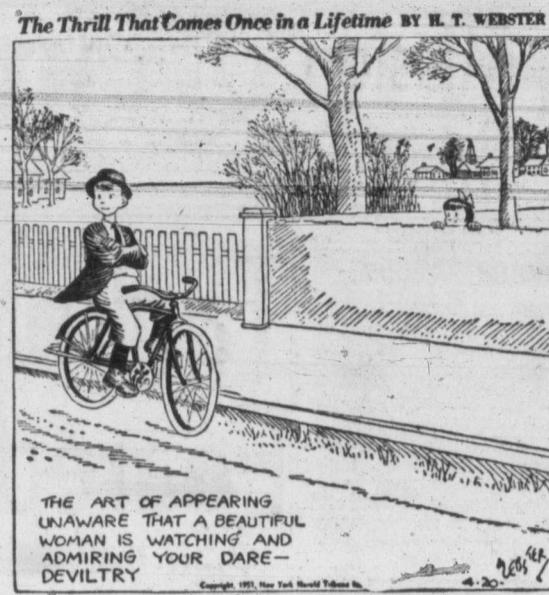

All of which suggests that, as the whirligig of events has seemingly reversed the old idea of an Englishman's home being his castle and made it so that an Englishman's castle is no longer his home, so perhaps it may have resulted in an Englishman's wife now being the boss of the home. O tempora! O mores!

Further Boost In B.C. Gas, Oil Prices Seen

Possible 20 to 25 per cent increases in ocean freight shipment rates probably will be reflected in the cost of gasoline and oil to B.C. consumers.

Most of the crude oil refined in B.C. comes from California by tanker and a spokesman for the oil industry said it was almost certain gas and oil prices will be higher if shipping rates are increased.

He said that because the tanker situation is getting "very tight" the freight rates increase was expected.

He noted that shipping rates on the east coast recently were adjusted upwards.

Now that controls have been removed from the oil industry, the oil companies, which say freight rates are just as basic a cost in the final product as crude oil prices, can increase prices without application to the Coal and Petroleum Control Board.

Salvation Army's Korea Work Told

Christian missionaries and United States occupation forces since 1945 brought Koreans close to the point where they could govern themselves, Brig. Ada J. Irwin, who spent 25 years with the Salvation Army in Korea, said Thursday at a Rotary Club luncheon.

Japanese had always kept the Koreans in "very minor" positions, she said. The Salvation Army established training schools for boys, and through Christianity raised women to a cultural and administrative level equal to that of any country in the world.

Wearing the traditional blue and white silk gown of Korean women, Brig. Irwin said she was given 45 minutes' warning to evacuate, and then had to find cover from strafing Yak fighter planes while waiting with other evacuees for their aircraft.

The jury returned the verdict following less than an hour's deliberation on whether Billett was guilty of aiding or abetting Wallace Stevenson and John Benson to attempt the robbery. Benson and Stevenson pleaded guilty to the charge.

The Crown claimed that Billett loaned his car to Benson and Stevenson for the attempted hold-up and had full knowledge of what the two men planned to do. Billett denied this in court and contended that he tried to stop the two men from carrying out their plans.

Billett was defended by H. K. Bate.

Billett Found Not Guilty By Assize Jury

An Assize Court jury Thursday found Clarence Arthur Billett, not guilty on charge of attempted robbery in connection with attempted hold-up of the Douglas Street Safeway Store March 10.

The jury returned the verdict following less than an hour's deliberation on whether Billett was guilty of aiding or abetting Wallace Stevenson and John Benson to attempt the robbery. Benson and Stevenson pleaded guilty to the charge.

U.S. House Committee Probes War Surplus Deal

Offers Friendship To People Of Soviet; Urges Grain For India Half Gift, Half Loan

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House executive expenditures subcommittee today studied a hodge-podge of testimony on the manœuvrings of international traders who sold U.S. war surplus materials at huge profits.

John Maragon, former Kansas City bootblack who became a White House hanger-on, told the investigators Thursday that George Dawson, the mysterious British trader, relied on "crooked elements" of foreign purchasing agencies in Paris to buy the surplus.

Maragon said he joined Dawson in the surplus business three years ago, but dropped out after one trip to Europe because, he said, he found that Dawson and some of his partners had criminal records. Maragon said he went abroad with a letter of introduction from Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide.

Magnuson Would Use Chiang Men

TAIPEH (UP)—Senator Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., recommended today Chinese Nationalist troops be used in Korea. The senator said he planned to investigate non-Communist trade with Red China and the problem of Chinese refugees from the Communist regime.

Finance committee Thursday advised Victoria Trades and Labor Council to take their representations on telephone rates to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The labor council asked the committee to consider making representation to the Public Utilities Commission with a view to revoking permission granted for telephone increases, on grounds that there had been no "noticeable improvement in service."

Al. William Pinfold said the matter had nothing to do with the Public Utilities Commission and representation would have to be made to the transport board.

Canada's Weather Picture Today

SYNOPSIS Freezing temperatures were again general over B.C. early today with many stations in the interior reporting overnight low values near 20 above. With clear skies expected to persist over the province for the next 48 hours both daytime and overnight temperatures will continue to moderate as daytime heating more than makes up for the night-time cooling. There is no sign of any break in the present dry spell as the southern coast and lower mainland regions enter the fourth week without appreciable rainfall.

Arson Probed In Fire At San Quentin Penitentiary

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI)—San Quentin prison officials today studied the possibility of arson in an investigation of a fire that destroyed the prison's jute mill, causing damage estimated at $3,000,000.

Thirteen guards and convicts suffered injuries, most of them minor burns and smoke inhalation. Two convicts risked their lives to drag guard James D.

Big Bombing Range Planned For Northland

OTTAWA (CP)—A huge, $14,000 bombing and gunnery range stretching across northern Alberta and Saskatchewan will be established soon, the latest project in Canada's build-up of air training potential.

The latest air weapons will be tested there.

Agreement between the federal government and the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan for establishment of the big, new R.C.A.F. development was announced today by Defence Minister Claxton.

The new range will be established roughly 100 miles north east of Edmonton and construction will be started immediately on necessary runways, operations buildings and barrack blocks.

The range will cover several thousand miles of territory. Air force officials said its size is necessitated by the high speed of modern jet aircraft and the long range of modern cannon and rocket armament which increases the danger area.

In addition to ordinary bombing and gunnery practice the range will be used "in the evaluation of various forms of air weapons including particularly air-to-air rockets" rocket firing by one plane at an aerial target towed by another.

New Zoning Survey Set For Victoria

Town Planning Commission Thursday night announced J. H. Doughty-Davies, provincial government planning expert who originally zoned Victoria and framed the first zoning by-law 25 years ago, would carry out a rezoning survey starting May 1.

The city will play $500 for the one-month survey.

Given leave of absence by province, Mr. Doughty-Davies will "consolidate, amend and change the existing zoning map and by-law as indicated by changes and appeals made since 1926." He will also try to make allowances for future development.

The commission, split into three permanent committees, will work with Mr. Doughty-Davies. Members expressed need for a citizen with engineering experience to fill a vacancy on the commission.

WITCHCRAFT LAWS FIXED

LONDON (AP)—Britain today purged sections of the famed Witchcraft Act which have haunted mediums and spiritualists since 1735.

A new law, given final passage by the House of Commons today, lifted the threat of prosecution as "Rogues and Vagabonds" hanging over Britain's thousands of mediums and spiritualist believers under the 1735 act.

Scouts Hold Paper Drive Tomorrow

Today is scout's day in the Junior Chamber of Commerce's annual "Clean-up, Paint-up Week."

And while scouts are observing the day by tidying up their own cupboards, basements and attics, they will be out tomorrow to assist others do the same. Three troops plan paper drives.

Districts to be canvassed are those covered by the Esquimalt, Gorge Vale and St. John's scout troops.

Edward Meighen Dies

PORTRAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Edward Meighen, 70, farmer, realtor, soldier, a brother of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former prime minister of Canada, died Wednesday. He had lived here since 1926.

"I wouldn't give one square inch of Canada for the whole of Korea," Appleby commented.

Two of the men, Ptes. C. A. Rogers and J. E. Panz of Stellarton, former coal miners, were partially blinded by "poison" and were suffering they said from unknown effects of Korean conditions. Pte. J. D. Appleby, of Kentville, N.S., was suffering from wounds caused by shrapnel from a grenade.

U.S. Army Mission To Advise Chiang

Party Of 100 Bound For Formosa To Help Train Nationalist Troops

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States plans to send a military mission to Formosa, to train and advise the Chinese Nationalist forces it was learned today.

The mission, which will be announced soon, is expected to include about 100 persons.

The United States already is shipping a limited amount of free arms to the island bastion of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. This aid may be stepped up to total $50,000,000 during the next fiscal year.

The United States thus is completing a reversal of policy toward Nationalists. Two years ago, the United States withdrew its military mission from Chiang and issued a white paper denouncing the Nationalists as corrupt.

Premier Douglas Campbell called a midnight meeting of cabinet ministers and government power experts following the decision Thursday by the Winnipeg council. Under it, ratepayers have a chance to pass on a proposed monopoly of transportation and electricity and gas distribution in the Greater Winnipeg area.

The city's move is almost certain to bring at least a temporary halt in negotiations between the province and the Winnipeg Electric Company for purchase of the privately-owned utility, which has set a price tag of $70,000,000 on its assets.

The new situation developed only two days after the Provincial Legislature gave third and final reading to a bill incorporating the government's hydro plan, main feature of which was authority to take over Winnipeg Electric.

The situation is not bad as long as "the wind stays down," said fire chief Cliff Cory of Ladner.

Many families had prepared for evacuation.

Mainland Peat Fires Battled

LADNER (CP)—Peat bog fires which endangered at least 30 homes in this Fraser Valley district were under control today.

The situation is not bad as long as "the wind stays down," said fire chief Cliff Cory of Ladner.

The Balance Sheet

THE SESSION OF THE PROVINCIAL Legislature which ended this week was one of the most notable of recent times—notable for wisdom, error and bitter controversy.

On the side of wisdom must be counted the decision to keep the revenues and expenditures of the hospital insurance scheme in balance by direct levies on the beneficiaries. This policy, though it has produced widespread protest, is unquestionably sound but required high courage in the Government to enforce it. The Government has followed a hard and honest course which more and more people will appreciate later on. Had it done otherwise, the cost of hospital service, gradually unloaded on the treasury and hidden from view, would certainly have raised the general tax level not long hence and operating costs would have risen as the public brake on extravagance was removed.

The Legislature has not cured all the ills of the insurance scheme, it has not satisfied the public that hospitals are operated as economically as possible, it has not satisfied itself that some abuses still exist. It has not assured an adequate system of collecting premiums, and it has not constructed any satisfactory method of exempting the poor from insurance fees.

It is hardly surprising, however, that a scheme so ambitious and so hastily planned has developed the "bugs" which afflict all new machinery. The public will expect a legislative committee, touring the province this year, to recommend reforms at the next session, but the future of the scheme cannot be easy in these days of rising costs. The public must make up its mind to the fact that, to buy hospital service, it will have to reduce a little its other purchases. But what purchase could be more useful? What of equal value can the public buy for the same price? The trouble and clamor so far stems mainly from the fallacious idea that hospital service—or any other public service—can be supplied free. The bill has come in and must be paid one way or another.

Unfortunately a Government which acted boldly and wisely on hospital insurance showed no compunction of its budget. The huge and still rising budget

A General's Farewell

IN THE HUMAN SPECTACLE OF General MacArthur's appearance before Congress and his moving farewell to half a century of honorable service, his concrete recommendation to the American Government and people were too easily forgotten. What is the actual policy which this great soldier advocates and for which he was dismissed? It is, briefly, as follows:

The United States must hold the great arc of islands stretching from the Aleutians to the South Seas, must surrender no segment of its military power there lest it endanger the whole. Among the other islands Formosa is indispensable. But this arc is purely defensive. From it the United States can never hope to launch nor should it think of launching an attack on Asia. Nevertheless—the apparent contradiction here perhaps will be explained in the General's later testimony—if Russia is determined on a two-front war, in Asia and Europe, then to admit that the western world cannot counter both attacks is sheer defeatism, since the advance of Communism anywhere endangers freedom everywhere.

Thus far it will be seen that General MacArthur quarrels outright with the major thesis of the United States Government and its allies—the thesis, in brief, which Canada's L. B. Pearson expounded the other day when he said that the west cannot afford to dissipate its scant resources wherever the enemy chooses to strike, but must harbor them for essential points of defence.

General MacArthur goes on to lay down a plan for the specific case of the Korean war. He would neutralize the Chinese armies' bases of supply in Manchuria, presumably by bombing. He would blockade the Chinese coast. He would permit aerial reconnaissance of China. He would help the Nationalist armies of Chiang Kai-shek to attack China. But no man in his senses, he says, would commit a stern ground forces to the Chinese mainland.

His critics, the General says, are afraid that his policy would involve total war with China. His answer is that figures reveal a Government utterly deaf to the needs of national defence and careless of the fires of inflation which its extravagance helps to feed. In normal times this would be a profligate budget. In times of national danger and rising prices it is a reckless and unpatriotic budget for which there is no excuse.

Mr. Anscomb says the budget may have to be reduced, some of the highly inflationary public works postponed if conditions deteriorate. What other danger signal does Mr. Anscomb need besides the new Federal taxes, the growing burden on the taxpayer and the rising price level?

If the Government has any sense of national responsibility it will revise its budget now in the light of the Federal budget. It will refuse to spend all the money voted by a Legislature which apparently never heard of the nation's stark danger, of the taxpayer or of inflation. British Columbia simply cannot afford to maintain the breakneck pace that Mr. Anscomb has set. And this, we suspect, Mr. Anscomb, if no other minister, knows very well.

The session made some progress in the perennial liquor problem, but not much. It was wise to save the cost of an immediate plebiscite and arrange for a cheap public vote at the next general election. It has not been decided, however, what question or questions shall be submitted to the electors. The public is left entirely in the dark. At the next session the House should insist on framing the exact terms of the plebiscite. They should be fixed by public debate, if possible on a non-partisan basis, and not left to the last-minute discretion of the Government.

At least it may be said of the recent session that it greatly clarified provincial politics. The course of the Coalition is now firmly set. It will be dissolved before the next election, its two parties will run independently on an alternative voting system and it is to be hoped one party or the other will secure a working majority. Politics are getting back to normal. But it would be a brave and foolish man who would predict events two years hence when many things more important than any provincial government are likely to be changed beyond recognition.

China already is engaged in total war to the limit of its means. His critics say that his policy might involve full-scale Russian intervention. This risk he brushes aside pretty light-heartedly with the remark that Russia will not necessarily mesh its policies with those of China but will only strike when it sees a chance of a world victory. The risk of total war apparently must be taken.

In all this General MacArthur professes himself a friend of Asia. He warns his countrymen that western imperialism in Asia is dead, that the west can act there only as a friend and counselor, never again as a master and exploiter, for Asia's revolution must go forward in its own way.

No thoughtful man will quarrel with that. It is, of course, the very policy which the United States and British Governments have been trying to follow in Asia since the last war, with infinite difficulty in distinguishing between the revolution and the counter-revolution. It is still more difficult to reconcile General MacArthur's plea for the free progress of the Asiatic peoples with his sponsorship of Chiang, who seems to be in the Chinese mind, the symbol of reaction and the instrument of the dead past.

However, it is unfair to judge a soldier's full strategy from a brief speech to a rather hysterical Congress. His views will be better understood when he submits himself to the cross-examination of a congressional committee—especially on his surprising statement that the American Chiefs of Staff agree with him, even though General Bradley, their chairman, has publicly declared the contrary.

General MacArthur has richly earned the right to a full hearing when his opinions can be presented in detail and answered by those who believe he would risk unnecessarily the final plunge into world war. The world should watch without hysteria when the General descends from the rostrum and enters the witness box.

Franco's Reverse 'English'

DISTINCTION IN THE NEWSPAPER world is rewarded in different ways. For some outstanding United States journalists, a Pulitzer Prize marks the peak of achievement. There are variants of the same type of recognition.

Of a different nature, though possibly as commendable, is the honor bestowed upon Sam Pope Brewer, veteran correspondent of the New York Times. The Spanish Government's press bureau has withdrawn Mr. Brewer's working credentials for "consistent distortion" of the news. That, presumably, is the literal translation of the Spanish accusation. One the basis of the reputation of the New York Times and its correspondents, the action could quite conceivably reflect the irritation of pompous little Francisco Franco and his minions over excellent factual and interpretive writing.

The Spanish gesture is probably an accolade to Mr. Brewer. A knock from Franco is almost automatically a boost to a democrat. Why should the deactivated and silent partner of Hitler and Mussolini want truth any more than his Argentinian buddy Peron does?

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A PRAIRIE newspaper refers to the new Canadian Minister of Defence Production as "The Unsinkable Mr. Howe." It is an apt phrase. Mr. Howe is unsinkable. He was unsinkable in mid-Atlantic, during the first days of the war, when he sat bolt upright and serene in a lifeboat and waited for rescue or nightfall and certain death. He is unsinkable in politics because he refuses to understand them. While men who know much more have sunk on all sides in a sea of argument, principle and philosophy, Mr. Howe's head is always above water because he is incapable of perceiving the abstract and survives by doing the day's work without worry about the morrow.

In Mr. Howe—it is a fact which few contemporary Canadians understand but which history will observe easily enough—we have one of the ablest public men in the world and a figure quite unique because, in the ordinary sense, he is not a public man at all.

HE WILL rank in our history among our largest national figures. He will be seen in his true dimensions with the Frontenacs, Carletons, Baldwins, Macdonalds, Galtis, Siftons and all the other men of action as distinguished from the men of thought. He will be remembered as one of our supreme politicians, in the best sense of that term, but the mystery of the man remains:

How could this engineer and business man from the United States master the art of politics without ever understanding or wishing to understand it?

How comes it that the nation gives into his hands, for the second time, the management of its entire economy when quite obviously he doesn't know and doesn't care a hoot about the philosophy of government on which the nation is based?

And why does the nation confidently hand over to him unprecedented and practically unlimited powers when he has constantly committed egregious blunders and never sought to excuse them?

SUPERFICIALLY the answer is that Mr. Howe has become the handy-man of Ottawa, the jack-of-all-trades, that he happens to have the complete trust of the Prime Minister, the Government, a majority of Parliament and most of the Liberal Party. But one suspects that Mr. Howe has a deeper meaning than that in Canadian history. He is much more than the accident of an American who happened to move to Canada and grasp better than most natives the opportunities and the challenge of a raw new country. Though foreign-born, he is, one ventures to conclude, a deep portion of Canadian life, a kind of microcosm of the Canadian spirit, the essential Canadian in a time of crisis. In short, if we had no Howe we would have to invent him.

THROUGHOUT our history it will be seen that the Canadian has never been much of a man for principles, theories, philosophies and inward doubts.

If he had been bound by principles this nation could never have been started in the first place; for the whole constitutional structure of the nation, from Durham's Report onward, its place as an autonomous state within a queer Commonwealth has denied every known principle of government.

If Canada had insisted on logic, instead of national life, we would be now a colony of Britain or some 10 states in the American Union, as every squirming logician of Britain in Durham's time confidently predicted.

And if we had ever paused to debate philosophies of politics—as the French, for example, paused in their Revolution and never quite succeeded in making their constitution march, as Carlyle said—then we would never have built the C.P.R. in the first place and built it with a transcontinental state.

CANADA is the product of ad hoc, illogical, inconsistent and often crazy trials and errors. It was built by men who seldom paused to consider what they were doing or why. Thus in times of crisis Canada throws up such improbable men as Mr. Howe, the successor of many others of the same fantastic sort. As a person he is unique. As a Canadian product he is typical, inevitable, essentially Canadian.

It is said that Mr. Mackenzie King worked by a sure instinct of politics and this is true. It is said that Mr. Howe has no instinct for politics and this apparently is true also. Yet he is purely a man of instinct, an instinct entirely different from that of Mr. King, but perhaps in instinct much more Canadian.

Equally Canadian is the public attitude toward Mr. Howe. Characteristically, as they have always underestimated all their leaders, the Canadian people underestimate Mr. Howe. That is part of our deep and stubborn national inferiority complex. Because we are a small people we have always assumed that our leaders must be smaller than those of larger nations.

IT HAS never occurred to us that some of our statesmen have been the equal or superior of the much more famous men of other lands. It is almost incredible to us today that Mr. Howe may be the ablest executive in the English-speaking world but observers in Washington understand it readily enough. And Mr. Howe, for his part, is quite uninterested in any such current verdict, or in the verdict of history. By the final Canadian compulsion he does the job at hand and is content. Asked how he liked the job, he said the other day: "I hate it." That is clearly untrue and so thoroughly Canadian.

The Spanish gesture is probably an accolade to Mr. Brewer. A knock from Franco is almost automatically a boost to a democrat. Why should the deactivated and silent partner of Hitler and Mussolini want truth any more than his Argentinian buddy Peron does?

"Lightning is something you have to co-operate with," says a scientist. Or it can demand it.

Iranian Oil and The Slow Match

By JOSEPH ALSOP From Teheran

THE first point the Americans and British negotiators have passed over in their meaningless communiqué from Washington is the extreme seriousness of the Iranian situation they have been so nervously discussing. By a long course of flaccidity and folly, Iran and the Middle East in general have been brought close to the point of explosion. The decision of the Iranian Majlis to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian oil company is merely the slow match that may touch off the explosion.

The American tendency to assume an air of conscious rectitude, and to hint that this is a nasty imperialist mess with which we are not concerned, can only be compared with the similar (and even less excusable) British tendency in dealing with the Far Eastern crisis in recent months. In fact American interests are as inextricably entangled in this Iranian problem as are British interests.

PATTERN FOR MIDDLE EAST

If no sensible compromise on the oil question is found, the first consequence will be general imitation of the Iranian example throughout the whole Middle East. The American oil properties here will also be involved. What is far worse, loss of control of her Middle Eastern oil, which is all the oil Britain has, will promptly reduce Britain to the status of a secondary power. Thus the whole huge American postwar investment in maintaining Britain as a major power ally will be flushed down the drain. Interruption or reduction of Middle Eastern oil supplies will be crippling, in truth, to the strength of all of Western Europe.

En route to Teheran, this correspondent touched base in London. There he received the strong impression that the British government will not accept defeat in the long, hard struggle to rebuild Britain's power position and economy. Instead, if worst comes to worst, they will dust off the plan the Cabinet actually approved during the previous Iranian crisis of 1946.

At that time, it will be recalled, British occupation of southern Iran was hurriedly prepared for, in order to protect the oil property from the Soviets. If the British now move troops to Iran, Soviet occupation of the rest of the country under the 1921 treaty will be virtually inevitable.

THREAT OF CHAOS

Even if the British shrink back at the last moment from such desperate measures, a general effort by the Middle Eastern governments to take over the oil companies can only lead to political chaos throughout the whole region. The companies are actually larger organizations than the governments themselves. The process of take-over will unleash unimaginable political tensions. One way or another chaos will be unavoidable.

Chaos in the Middle East in turn will compromise the whole position in the eastern Mediterranean. The American Mediterranean fleet, which is now much larger than the British fleet there, and especially the Anglo-American air bases in Cyprus, Cyrenaica and Tripoli, are now among the chief deterrents to Soviet aggression. If the airbases alone could be available—and the British will hardly be in a mood to permit their use if necessary—by us at this juncture—the effect will be the same as losing one-half or more of the American Strategic Air Force.

In short, this business in Iran is potentially more serious for the Western alliance than anything but a naked Soviet aggression in a critical area.

Golden Rain

New York Times

FORSYTHIA opens its yellow flowers and no matter what the state of the sky overhead the spring sun seems to shine. The parkways in the city begin to glow, the suburban streets gleam, and country roads sparkle wherever some forethoughted soul planted a forsythia bush. Its warm and lively color transforms a landscape just beginning to revive with green and grassy life. Its gold is the coin of spring tiptoeing up the valleys.

The botanical name comes from one William Forsyth, a British botanist, and some tales have it that he introduced the bush from the Orient. That seems unlikely. Botanists are, on the whole, modest men who name their finds for their friends, not for themselves. In some areas it is called "Golden Bells," which is not too apt, since the flower is four-petaled, opens wide, and has little resemblance to any bell. Occasionally it is known as "Golden Rain," a better name by far. An untrimmed bush with its waxes spattered with bloom is like a gushing fountain of golden water bubbling high and falling back to the pool from which it sprang. After a spring rain such a bush is dazzling with raindrops, each of which seems to catch the gold of the flowers. Then, indeed, it is golden rain.

Now it is merely gold, by whatever name, the generous yellow that makes spring so lively to the eye and so uplifting to the heart. It won't endure. A week of warmth and sunshine and it will begin to fade. But by then there will be other yellows and pinks and reds and lavenders in sight, buds opening everywhere. But right now it is a sunny, golden delight to look upon.

A man is as smart as a steel trap when he knows the time to keep his own trap closed.

The Hospital Dime

Have those who are complaining about the cost of hospital insurance taken the trouble to figure out how long it takes the average worker to pay for this service?

The cost is, in fact, a trifle over a dime a day for a married man and something less than a dime a day for a single man.

No, it's not the worker who is really hit by this hospital dime a day. It's the person beyond work. And only some of them! That is because none of those who receive "social welfare" are asked to pay the hospital dime; or even 1 cent for that service, neither per day, per week, per month or per year. All these are sent a receipt for their hospital insurance without payment by them.

Of course to give those on "social welfare" a "free" receipt is the only practical and sensible thing to do. No one will say they should not have this service.

The "forgotten" men and women are those who have denied themselves during their working lives enough to pay their own bills in old age, those who have saved $60, $70, even $100 a month; $3.50 a month from them is no more than $3.50 a month from the "social welfare" case, but then the "social welfare" case does not pay it.

So, cut to its marrow, what do you get? Three minutes a day cost to the workman, nothing from the "social welfare" case, but something rather large proportionately from the salt of the earth, those independent enough to provide for themselves by foresight and denial.

And, let us remember, if too many rely on the "government" to give them a living, the whole structure of "social welfare" crashes to the ground. That is actually the end result. Many good people won't face that fact.

H. C. HOLMES.

Such A Stamp

Toronto Star

The Canadian 10-cent stamp is one of the weirdest objects known to philately. If ugliness and absurdity add to a stamp's value, this one will be a treasure in all future collections.

On the right is an Indian teepee, with a man's head and shoulders showing beyond it. On the left, with trees in the background, is a collection of three objects, with a figure resembling that of a man standing beside them. What these objects are, and how they are suspended in midair, not one Canadian out of a dozen could guess. They are stretched beaver skins. One is of tremendous size as long as the human figure is tall. An expert has said that this must indeed have been the grandfather of all beavers.

"I like Canadian radio a lot and find CKDA very cheerful and varied," Mrs. G. A. Shields remarked before she turned it off so we could talk.

Born and educated in Scotland, Mr. and Mrs. Shields reside at 2369 Foul Bay Road after living 14 years at Barranquilla, Colombia, South America.

"Barranquilla," said Mr. Shields, "had a population of about 150,000 when we went there. It had doubled before we left."

I asked him why. "The war, industrialization."

In 1937 the rayon factory at Kirkcudbright for which he was engineer, was sold, loaded on a ship, taken with all its tanks, pipes, fittings and chemical apparatus to Barranquilla. Mr. Shields and four English officials went with it, set it up. Mrs. Shields and baby Ann followed later. Son William was left at school in England.

PIONEERED INDUSTRY

"It was the first factory to manufacture rayon yarn in a tropical country," Mr. Shields explained. "At first we had problems, mostly to do with temperature which affected chemical reactions and labor. Naturally we had to train our employees. We started with a payroll of 150. It was 1,000, sometimes 1,100, before I left. Once the natives had tasted the benefits of a regular pay cheque they were eager to work there."

Last summer Mr. Shields decided to seek fresh pastures. "Too long a sojourn in the tropics can get you down," he said.

With Mrs. Shields he came north to join Ann, now 15. Looking for a place to settle, they motored across the continent by way of Boston, Toledo, where Ann had to be operated on for appendicitis, Los Angeles, then to Victoria. Later, they went on a holiday to Europe and returned to Victoria last December.

"But our stuff arrived only last week," said Mrs. Shields. "Mostly silver and linen. We had to sell our lovely mahogany furniture in Barranquilla. It would have been too big for houses elsewhere."

Homes in South America are more spacious than here, she told me? Most white households keep a cook and a gardener."

The Shield's son, William, in the R.A.F. during the war, trained at Rivers, Man.

HOME GARDEN

by Jack Rawson

A beautiful velvety lawn, the desire of all gardeners, is neither cheap to make nor easy to come by.

It requires money and work for thorough preparation of the site, and continued work to keep it in shape.

When we consider that each tuft of grass is an individual plant, and that there are hundreds of these plants to the square yard, we begin to see reasons for so many poor lawns.

Jack

In the open garden we believe that a well prepared soil, rich in plant food and containing an abundance of humus, is essential to good crops, and we take care to space our plants so that one does not rob the other of its food supply.

Borders for perennial plants are carefully prepared and stocked with plant food, because we know that the plants will be undisturbed for three or four years.

It follows, then, that the lawn,

Urge Efforts To Regain U.K. Mart

Opposition Members Want Change In Election Act; Budget Debated

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Government was urged Thursday to strive to regain some of the United Kingdom markets lost during the war and post-war years.

Frank Stanfield (PC—Colchester-Hants N.S.) said the Government should try to regain the British market for Nova Scotia apples and for pit props from the Maritime provinces.

G. S. White (P.C., Hastings-Peterborough, Ont.), said efforts should be made to reopen the British market to Canadian agricultural and other products, but he added, the United Kingdom should be prepared to pay "going prices."

The two members were among 10 heard as the Commons debate on the budget continued through its fourth successive day, the debate will be resumed today.

At the House opening, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Canada will be "interested" if negotiations between the United States, Australia and New Zealand are extended towards a Pacific pact along the lines of the North Atlantic Treaty. But there is no indication at present that this extension is going to take place.

Members agreed to establish a committee to study changes to the Federal Election Act. J. A. Ross (P.C., Souris, Man.), and Robert Fair (S.C., Battle River, Alta.), suggested adoption of the single transferable vote system in federal elections.

Defense Production Minister Howe said the government does not intend to control the allocation of newspaper in Canada.

In the debate, Mr. Stanfield called for action to ease the freight-rate burden on the Maritime provinces. If they are to trade with central and western Canada, he said, something will have to be done about the high freight rates. He urged adoption of a national fuel policy to assist the Nova Scotia coal industry.

The Reds have embarked on a policy of taking over Christian institutions in China and five Canadian Roman Catholic nuns have been reported under arrest for alleged mistreatment of children in an infant reception centre. There have been unconfirmed reports that other Canadian nuns have been arrested.

Quakers Send Parcels Abroad

Clothing and footwear for men, women and children were included in the shipment of 19 cartons sent from Friends Meeting House, 1831 Fern Street, for Quaker headquarters in England and then to the needy on the continent, according to Mrs. I. M. Vallance, clerk of the meeting, today.

Included in the shipment were quilts, the gift of workers in other church groups. The clothing is distributed among displaced persons, orphans and refugees.

The need is still tremendous, not only in small groups but among vast populations in Germany, Austria and Greece," said Mrs. Vallance.

Parcels can be left at 618 Pandora or 1831 Fern. Gifts of money are used for purchase of pabulum, cod liver oil and medical supplies for weak and undernourished children.

Dr. F. G. Robertson (L., Northumberland, Ont.), defended the budget and termed it a "realistic" and "fair" budget even if it was not "pleasant" to the Opposition. He did, however, regret the new 15-per-cent excise tax on refrigerators, washing machines and stoves.

DRAINAGE IMPORTANT
The first essential is good drainage; without it moss and fung will soon replace the grass. Secondly, good soil of sufficient depth; a balanced mixture of loam, humus to hold moisture, and sand to prevent packing. Thirdly, no weeds; this condition is obtained by fertilizing the site to make the weeds grow, and then controlling them with regular cultivation before the seed is sown.

Grade is also important. Sowing grass on steep banks or terraces was never a success; and a definite nuisance when cutting. Level stretches of lawn with rock retaining walls are much to be preferred.

There are, also, different kinds of grasses. Some like partial shade, some full shade, others like lots of sun. Your seedman can advise the kind to use for your conditions.

The dentists' representatives claimed that many of the "bootleggers" work at home in basements and attics with a minimum of equipment and turn out unskilled work.

Dental officials want the government to pass an amendment to the Dentistry Act which would make it illegal for anyone to buy dentures without a prescription from a dentist.

One of the "bootleggers," who for obvious reasons did not want his name used, told a newspaper interviewer:

"People are satisfied with our work . . . Many people just can't afford to pay what the dentists are charging. Ours is a real service for the low-income groups."

The "bootleggers" sell a set of false teeth for $75. The dentist's charge would be around $150.

CAMEL STEAK MAY HELP OUT MEAT RATION

LONDON (Reuters)—"Hump steak" instead of rump steak to eke out the British meat ration was an idea brought to London Thursday by John Foster, Conservative member of Parliament for Norwich.

Just back from the Middle East, Foster remembers with relish a piece of grilled camel's hump served by his hosts in Amman, Jordan.

So he's going to ask Food Minister Maurice Webb in Parliament why he doesn't add camel meat to the collection of meats recently imported into Britain. It would be an interesting addition to beaver, whale and reindeer, he said.

Camels are being bred specially for food in Syria and Palestine.

'Bootlegging' In Dentures Raises Storm

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials of two top dentists' organizations Thursday combined to condemn the work of what they termed "bootleg" technicians.

Dr. Emery Jones, president of the College of Dental Surgeons, said the "bootleg" dental technicians are a menace to public health and ethical practice.

He was supported in his charge by Dr. C. R. Hallman, president of the Vancouver and District Dental Society.

Both officials endorsed protests of the Dental Laboratories Association of British Columbia.

Officials of the Dental Laboratories Association claimed that half the dental laboratories in Vancouver are "bootlegging" dental fittings.

It is illegal for technicians to carry on certain dental work without the supervision of qualified dentists.

The dentists' representatives claimed that many of the "bootleggers" work at home in basements and attics with a minimum of equipment and turn out unskilled work.

Dental officials want the government to pass an amendment to the Dentistry Act which would make it illegal for anyone to buy dentures without a prescription from a dentist.

Ford Fund For Education

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—The Ford Foundation has established a fund for the advancement of education with a $7,154,000 interim budget, Foundation President Paul G. Hoffman announced today.

The non-profit organization is headed by Dr. Clarence H. Faust, former Stanford University Dean of Humanities and Sciences, and will have offices here and in New York.

Hoffman, former Economic Co-operation Administration head, said the fund would be used to study educational problems arising in primary and secondary schools, colleges and universities.

He said one of the organization's first problems would be to study the result of manpower mobilization on the nation's schools.

Mixed Reaction To MacArthur's Talk

Papers Of Western Europe Praise Dignity But Criticize Policies

LONDON (Reuters) — Newspapers of the western world generally saluted Gen. MacArthur today for the way in which he wound up his military career in his farewell speech to Congress.

"The speech expected of him—strong, never failing below dignified utterance, and uncompromising," says The Times of London.

IVANOE BONOMI

Ex-Premier Of Italy, Bonomi, Dies, Aged 78

ROME (UP) — Ivanoe Bonomi, 78, President of the Italian Senate and Italy's second post-Mussolini Premier, died early today.

He had been ill with a circulatory ailment and suffered a relapse Thursday.

Bonomi entered politics as a militant Socialist and became an associate of Benito Mussolini in the days before World War I. However, he was expelled from the Socialist Party in 1911 for approving the Italian campaign in Libya, North Africa.

He fought briefly in World War I and served in a number of cabinets from 1916 through 1920. While War Minister, he was accused by his former Socialist comrades of giving arms to Mussolini's flying squads, but the charge never was proved.

Bonomi subsequently broke with Mussolini and retired from politics to devote himself to the practice of law.

He took over leadership of the anti-Nazi underground after the fall of Mussolini and seizure of Rome by the Germans. Tracked down by the S.S. and Gestapo, he took refuge in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran and from inside the church directed the National Committee of Liberation.

Plane Plays Leap-Frog

ROME (Reuters) — Inventor Count Giovanni Bonmartini demonstrated Thursday a caterpillar-track landing gear which he said permits aircraft to take off from and land on almost any kind of surface. His Piper Cub airplane leap-frogged over blocks of wood and stones in taking off and landing on an uneven field. The "tubular track landing gear," resembling the tractor wheels on a light tank, has interested the British government, Bonmartini said.

WHEN CRICKET 'NOT CRICKET'

WINNIPEG (CP) — It's not cricket to play cricket on Sundays, says Winnipeg's parks board.

Although golf, swimming and tennis are permitted, the board Thursday rejected a proposal from the Manitoba Cricket Association that matches be allowed in Assiniboine Park on Sundays this summer. They ruled that cricket is "organized spot."

Quadruplets Born

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass today reported the birth of quadruplets—three girls and a boy—to the wife of a factory porter in Kremenchug, near Kiev, in the Soviet Ukraine. The report said the babies and their mother were doing well.

In Australia, the Melbourne Herald says MacArthur had "underlined the urgent need for the United Nations to declare for a definite policy and accept the consequences."

The mass-circulation Daily Mirror of London, in a front-page news story, described MacArthur's speech as "a dangerous challenge to the policies of the Truman government and to those also of the British Commonwealth and United Nations."

MacArthur, the Mirror says, had put much of the U.S. "in an hysterical mood."

Moscow radio today quoted an article in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia saying MacArthur had been dismissed because "with swashbuckling brazenness he blurted out the U.S. government's intentions of extending the aggression in the Far East."

STILL WANT THE STONE Immune From Arrest, Scots Confess

GLASGOW (AP) — Scotsmen who removed the coronation stone from Westminster Abbey revealed their identity Thursday shortly after the government gave its word there would be no prosecutions.

Ian Hamilton, 25, a Glasgow University student, handed newspaper men a statement explaining how the 458-pound stone was taken last Christmas Day, hauled to Scotland and then surrendered April 11 in Arbroath Abbey.

Police since have brought the stone back to Westminster Abbey, where it is under heavy guard.

Two of Hamilton's colleagues, Gavin Vernon, 24, of Kinloch Rannoch, Perthshire, and Alan Stuart, 20, of Barrhead, were with him when he gave the statement.

Hamilton identified the fourth member of the party as Miss Kay Matheson and said she now is in Ross-shire.

Hamilton said the stone was removed because Britain's Labor government has not given Scotland a measure of self-government. He expressed belief that the stone eventually would come back to Scotland, saying:

"We don't consider the matter closed until the stone is back in Scotland."

"I am still hopeful that the Church of Scotland will speak for the people and see that the stone is returned to the custody of the church."

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross told the House of Commons in London Thursday that the Scottish patriots had admitted implication in the theft of the stone.

Sport Week

By JOHN LARDNER

There has never been much doubt that a wrestler is a superior phenomenon to a boxer, athletically and culturally; yet, until very recently, wrestlers were seldom invited to the better class parties, where the guests wore clothes, or permitted to marry outside their own profession. There was the sad case some time ago of a wrestler who, after years of wrestling with alligators, married an alligator's daughter, just to have someone to talk to: I call it a sad case because of the implications of social injustice. As a marriage it turned out quite well.

Wrestlers are better spellers than boxers. They understand the principle of nuclear fission. In man-to-man physical combat with boxers, they always win. In a match with a boxer named Aspin, Joseph (Toots) Mondt took a bathrobe cord from his trunks and tied his opponent hand and foot in something like a minute and a half. Later on being untied, Aspin was asked to a debutante's ball. Mondt wasn't.

Why one trade should have been considered more genteel than the other, I don't know, but I'm glad to say that a change has lately set in. Wrestling has become respectable. That's because (mark the irony of this) more and more boxers are going in for wrestling, either as performers or as spokesmen for the business.

A milestone was reached this month with the publication of a magazine called Official Wrestling, of which the chairman of the board, and first editorial writer, is Gene Tunney, an ex-boxer. Normally, the influx of boxers would lower the general IQ of wrestling, but Mr.

Tunney insures against that. Of wrestling, Mr. Tunney writes: "Regardless of the outcome of any such contest" — "regardless" is a wrestler's word; all boxers but Tunney say "irregardless" — "or the presence or lack of historians on the parts of the contestants, the spectacle of perfect specimens of athletes matching physical strength and mental astuteness in combat, will always have a primitive yet normal and healthy appeal."

Recognized By Bell Corp.

Immediately after release of this statement, which implies that it makes no difference whether or not a match is rehearsed, the names of eighteen wrestlers were admitted to either the Social Register or the telephone book. Also, it became clear that Joseph (Toots) Mondt, now a wrestling promoter, had been forgiven by Mr. Tunney, in behalf of the boxing trade, for having trussed up a boxer with a bathrobe cord. Mr. Mondt's name appears on the masthead of the magazine as vice-president. Office conferences are said to be models of friendliness and dignity. Mr. Mondt has not once tied Mr. Tunney hand and foot, though it is obvious that by doing so, he could move up from vice-president to chairman of the board.

The magazine is an important step, but not the first. Wrestling began to improve its prestige when Jack Dempsey became a wrestling referee. When Primo Carnera turned from boxing to wrestling, the move was hailed as one of the greatest advances ever scored in (a) wrestling, and (b) boxing. When Tony Galento, the spheroid New Jersey barkeep, went to London last month to wrestle Jack Doyle, the ever-loving Hibernian linnet, the way was paved for the great merger, and for Tunney's crossing of the Rubicon.

Just A Couple Of Sports

The Doyle-Galento match made history. Ten thousand people rushed to see it and rushed away just as fast. Both men, of course, are former boxers with a firm grasp of two sports. The first sport Galento grasped in London was Doyle himself, and the Cork cavalier, who, in the course of a heroic trip to this country in the 1930's, made three fights and two marriages, or perhaps it was the other way around, replied by laying hold of Tony by his last lock of hair, which grows just north of his stomach. Before the final spectator could reach an exit, the battle was over. It ended with the officials bending over Doyle to see whether he had a broken rib. Doyle's fights always end with somebody bending over him.

In short, wrestling has made the grade. As Mr. Tunney says, the spectacle of perfect specimens of athletes matching physical strength will always have a primitive yet normal and healthy appeal.

TO BE TESTED TONIGHT

Victoria Boxers Ready To Meet Best In B.C.

"Boys who win in this tournament will have the satisfaction of knowing that they have taken honors in the best of company."

That's the latest word from Harry Bloor, secretary of the B.C. Boxing Commission, on the Provincial Golden Gloves, which starts tonight in Vancouver.

Victoria's contingent traveled to the mainland last night and are reported to be all set for the "big try."

The tournament has already broken all records for out-of-town entries, and Bloor expected that the total would exceed the 1948 entry list of 73 boys.

Greatest interest is being evidenced in the featherweight class where the capital city's red-headed Wayne Robertson is entered with some of the smartest young fighters in the province.

A good response has also been forthcoming for the 100-pound "futurity" class. Bob Thompson of St. Louis College, only Victorian entered, will be drawn against Cedric Bill and Dave Jacobs of St. Paul's Athletic Club, and Frank Borgstad and Jim Winters of Norburn.

The fights are being referred by Hector MacDonald, former coast fighter who has won himself a reputation as one of the best ring arbiters in Western Canada.

NAVY READY

Three young boxers in the Royal Canadian Navy have been undergoing all-round work at Naden for the past few weeks getting in top shape for the Golden Gloves competition. Under the careful guidance of Petty Officer Roderick Bolt, Vancouver, B.C., holder of the 1948 Maritime welterweight championship, AB Frank McLean of Saskatoon, OS Bill Wilson, Sarnia, Ont., and AB Young Bruneau, Montreal and Shawinigan Falls, will carry the navy's colors in the featherweight, welterweight and light-heavyweight divisions.

MAPLE LEAFS NEED ONLY ONE MORE WIN

Habs Drop Another Overtime Toughie

MONTREAL (UP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs are making short work of the Montreal Canadiens in their bid for their fourth Stanley Cup championship in five years.

A goal by Harry Watson after five minutes of overtime play carried the Leafs to a 3 to 2 victory over the Canadiens last night before 14,452 heartsick fans at the Forum. It gave the Leafs a 3 to 1 bulge in the best-of-seven series.

The teams resume play tomorrow night at Toronto, with the Leafs needing only one more victory to gain the National Hockey League's prized mug. And according to Toronto coach, Joe Primeau, it's already in the bag.

"We should wrap it up in the next game," the jubilant Primeau said as he hustled his players aboard the train for Toronto.

Summary follows:

Toronto: Goal, Robbie, defense, Thompson, Montreux, Kennedy, Wings, Smith, Sloan; subs, Watson, Barlow, Bent, Ley, Klusky, Meeker, Flaman, Mackell, O'Neil, Bouchard, Lach, Timgren, Hart, Broda (sub, Royle).

Montreal: Goal, McNeil; defense, Hart, Bouchard, Lach, Timgren, Lach, Dales, Boudreault, Marus, Mancik, Meier, Piron.

First Period—1, Toronto, Smith (Kennedy), 30. 2, Montreal, Watson (Lach), 14:41. Penalties: Watson, Judd, Lach, Barlow, Marus.

Second Period—3, Toronto, Meeker (Watson), 14:45. Penley, Olmstead.

Third Period—4, Montreal, Lach (Richard, Bouchard), 13:49.

Fourth Period—5, Toronto, Watson (Watson), 5:15.

United Tests Heaney Eleven On Saturday

Heaney's soccer team will have to work out the kinks of a three-week layoff when it goes against Tommy Restell's Victoria United in a Province Cup playoff Saturday at Macdonald Park. Game time is 2:30.

The moving men have not had a match since they tied 1 to 1 with Alcos back in March, and that was after a considerable period of idleness, too.

Jim Lees, Heaney's manager, is confident, however, that his team will go full out when the test comes tomorrow.

HAVE BAYS HELP

Lees has signed four Oak Bay players to bolster his team's strength. Bill Henderson will serve in goal with Dave Burt and Charlie Smith giving him protection as fullbacks. Ron Peace, Dave Wright and Don Henderson will serve as the halfback string, while the advance line will consist of Mel Sillars, centre, Stan Wiseman and Frank Grealey on the right side and John Schaufele and Ralph Shandley on the left. Alec Walker, George Brown and Jack Glover will be spares for the game.

UNITED STRONG

The strong United club will have its regular Joe Travis to guard the net, and will field Tom Drue, John or Joe Robbins at the fullback posts. Sid Robbins will centre Red McMillan and Bobby Allen on the halfback line. The forward string will likely have Don McGee, Den McGee, Cedric Robb, Wallace Milligan and Al Travis in action. United spares will be George Kulai, Tim Walker and Don Hendry.

Winner of Saturday's match will take on the winner of Sunday's game between Alcos and Duncan at the end of next week.

Cocky Kewpie Barrett Has Athletics On Right Track For 1951 W.I.L. Pennant

Smith, Hedgecock To Start For A's

Barrett Names Line-Up; Bevos Jackson On Deck

By BILL WALKER

SPOKANE—Old Man Harmony and Old Man Hustle will be the two most important men in the line-up of the Victoria Athletics when they usher in the Western International Baseball League season at Ferris Field here Saturday afternoon.

Manager Dick Barrett of the A's made this plain Thursday shortly after being informed that the scheduled official opening had been put back to Saturday from Friday night.

"I've got good harmony on this club," Barrett stated after the A's had gone through their first workout at the refurbished home of the Spokane Indians Thursday afternoon, "and I aim to keep it that way."

And Barrett, fresh mint mentor of the W.I.L., had good reason for such a statement, after viewing the A's in their first drill since leaving the spring training site at Santa Rosa Monday.

On their arrival at the field the A's found the grounds still far from ready for the season's opener. Workmen were still occupied in installing a pitchers' rubber and home plate.

THREATENS BOYCOTT

Barrett, quick to recognize the significance of the situation, immediately challenged Hotchkiss with the demand that the A's be allowed to use the diamond for a workout or the club wouldn't take part in the mammoth parade and pre-season inaugural slated for Friday lunch hour.

Soon the workmen had dispersed and the A's were limbering up after three days of idleness. Ron Smith, Dick Waibel, Bill Paine and John Marshall threw to the hitters with Lillo Marcucci, the A's first-string catcher, hammering the ball the hardest of the lot.

Third baseman Don Pries, who has been out of baseball for the past two seasons, also looked good at the plate, as did lanky Bill White, back to the A's after three years in the Texas League.

Barrett, though not wishing to appear optimistic, figured the club as it now stands is as good as any other in the W.I.L.

He was particularly praiseworthy in regard to Marcucci, whom he said was the equal of at least three or four catchers now holding down regular berths in the Pacific Coast League.

Of Pries, Barrett said, "You'll see the Victoria senior league, or Wayne Brock will hold down the starting position in the right past.

Veteran Ken Richardson, returning to the Tribe after a season in the California State League, will be at the hot corner with Ed Nulty behind the plate. Nulty suffered a broken ankle early last season and saw only limited action for the Indians.

At shortstop will be Bob Reynolds, a colored youngster just out of Sacramento High School and only 18 years of age. Jim Brown up from Stockton of the California State League, will be at second, with Jim Wert of last year's A's at first.

John Conant and Dick Bishop have been named to work the openers.

STILL GOLD

Extremely cold weather after three weeks of tropical clime may hold down the attendance as the Indians and A's meet in their league get-away contest, but ticket sales augur well for a crowd of at least 4,000 to view the inaugural. A similar house is expected for the night game of the split twin bill.

The monster parade schedule for today (Friday) will see the A's and Indians driven through town and thence to a luncheon at which Barrett and general manager Reg Patterson will be guest speakers.

Following the dinner both the Indians and the A's will hold their final workout at Ferris Field.

Probable starting line-ups as released by Barrett and Strange (with last year's batting averages) follow:

Victoria—ss, Dunn, 284; 2b, Gaviglio, 228; lf, O'Laughlin, 285; cf, Thompson, 334; rf, White, 246; c, Marcucci, 367; 3b, Pries; 1b, Jackson, 339; p, Smith, 10-15; p, Hedgecock, 13-14.

Sooke—cf, Murphy, 257; lf, Vanni, 324; 1b, Wert, 279; c, Nulty (out for most of season); 3b, Richardson, 283; rf, Worth, 305; 2b, Brown, 236; ss, Reynolds; p, Conant, 17-17; p, Bishop, 15-14.

Manager Alan Strange of Spokane countered Barrett's starting nine with a mixture of veterans and untried rookies.

Eddie Murphy, a former Athlete, gets the nod for centre field, with Edo Vanni, another ex-Victoria of dubious repute in left. Either Art Worth, a prod-

CLERGYMAN M.P. SAYS N.H.L. 'WORST COMBINE'

OTTAWA (CP)—Rev. Dan McIvor, Liberal M.P. for Fort William, told the Commons last night he believes the National Hockey League is "one of the greatest combines we have in Canada."

The veteran clergyman and long-time sports enthusiast said he feared for the future of hockey "if it continues to be so destructive to our good athletes by way of injuries."

Dealing specifically with the N.H.L., he said:

"Boys of 16 years of age are infatuated with hockey. They play a good game, have plenty of speed and can find the goal. A scout comes along and such a boy signs something. Afterwards he may want to change his mind. Perhaps his dad has talked to him, or a man who is coaching him or his mother has had something to say about it."

"Nevertheless, the big magnate says to him: 'You will play for us or you will not play at all.'

"To my mind, that is one of the worst combines in Canada . . ."

Everybody's In The Act At Rousing Grunt Show

By BILL HOLLAND

Well, all the grapplers who had hero roles on last night's wrestling card at the Club Sirocco went home echoing the cry: "It was a great fight, Mom, and I won," except one, Andy Tremaine.

All in, poor Andy had a tough time of it. The crowd was with him all throughout the event, but unfortunately, the breaks weren't.

Curly-headed Mike Nazarian played for everything he could get, and although he won the match by pulling hair and twisting thumbs, and still came out a hero, many believed he could have won fairly.

The Dane MacDonald-Lee Jensen match was about the best event of the evening. It started out slow, but ended in a ring-roaring finish, which saw the referee cast in a supporting role.

Nick Harris was playing his arbiter role well when he was suddenly enticed into headlock by the villainous Newman.

Another hero-villain session saw "goody" Jack Fisher from Edmonton twisting arms with at 1.

Leo Jensen. The hero won when he leapt from the corner-post of the ring feet first and caught his crowd-hating opponent in the jaw.

At this nice piece of footwork, the crowd cheered wildly. Jensen then got to his feet and screamed at the top of his lungs to the crowd, "The reason you don't like me is because I'm a Yankee."

Victorian Lionel Speller bested Tyke Myron in the opening event. It was a fairly clean fight, which saw only a few tendences toward the villainous by Myron.

Albany, Ga. (UP)—The enlisted men never thought they'd live to see the day, but they claim it actually happened. A group of officers at Turner air force base had to go out and "police up" cigaret butts.

The officers involved, if possible, were even more stunned than the G.I.'s.

"It was the most insulting experience I ever had in the service," one said.

Officers who failed to make sure that enlisted men did the job, were required to trim grass, sweep up debris and pick up cigaret butts with their own bare hands, according to reports. Enlisted men watched the clean-up operation, it was reported, with poorly concealed glee.

Eleven Leading Scientists On Mobilization Board

Truman Completes Framework Of Over-all Plan To Co-ordinate Nation's Science Resources

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman completed the framework of the government's mobilization set-up today by naming 11 of the country's top scientists to a science advisory committee.

The group, headed by Dr. Oliver E. Buckley, president of Bell Telephone Laboratories, will be a part of Charles E. Wilson's Office of Defense Mobilization.

Mr. Truman outlined four responsibilities for the committee:

1. "To provide independent advice on scientific matters especially as regards the objectives and interrelations of the several federal agencies engaged in research of defences significance, including relevant foreign relations and intelligence matters."
2. "To advise on progress being made in dealing with current scientific research problems of defence significance and also concerning defence research matters which need greater attention or emphasis."
3. "To advise concerning plans and methods for the implementation of scientific effort for defence."
4. "For transmitting the views of the scientific community of the country on research and development matters of national defence significance."

Among other members of the committee will be Dr. James B. Conant, president of Howard University; Dr. Lee Dubridge, president of the California Institute of Technology; Dr. James R. Killian, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Robert F. Loeb, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, and Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, director and professor of physics at the Institute of Advanced Study, Princeton University.

Reds Still Expect Victory

WITH THE 24th DIVISION, KOREA (UP)—The Communists still intend to try to drive the United Nations forces out of Korea, Maj.-Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan said today.

The commander of the U.S. 24th Division said the current Chinese withdrawal is merely a "delaying action."

"Why he (the enemy) is batting so hard for time is something we have not determined," he said in an exclusive interview.

"But this much do know—he will turn round and fight. It may be tonight, tomorrow or next month."

"He has the capability for an all-out offensive. When and where and how he will make this felt is an unknown factor."

Four-Mill Boost In Saanich Taxes

Decide To Pay Full $48,000
This Year To Central Saanich

Reeve Joseph W. Casey and members of Saanich council, in the face of increased expenditures totalling almost 13 mills, today had managed to keep taxes to a four-mill increase.

This year the rate in that portion of Saanich in School District 61 will be 47.60 mills. Last year it was 43.50. Comparable figures for the School District 63 area are 46.15 for 1951, and 43.45 for 1950.

Meeting as the estimates committee Thursday night, the reeve and councillors were pleased at being able to push improvements and still maintain a reasonable rate.

Here is what the estimates committee was faced with this year:

A 4.1-mill increase in School District 61, and a 2.7-mill increase in School District 63, over which it had no control.

A 3.5-mill charge to pay Central Saanich its full share of apportionment settlement.

A two-mill charge for drainage, voted by the people in a referendum at the last election.

Increased wages amounting to 1.25 mills.

Increased pupil works totalling about 1.5 mills.

Saanich will pay Central Saanich its full amount of about $48,000 this year, instead of paying half this year and half in 1952 and paying 4 per cent interest on the balance.

The money to pay the apportionment award came from available surplus.

The municipality expects total receipts for the year of $1,591,524.

Public works will receive the lion's share of disbursements amounting to $188,450.

This will be used for projects on Blenkinsop Road, Wilkinson Road, Cowper Street, and Tillicum Road. In addition, Royal Oak Avenue will be surfaced, and sealcoating will be applied to Glenford Avenue and parts of Maplewood, Richmond, Cadboro Bay, and Cedar Hill Roads.

Sum of $3,000 has been budgeted for repairs to Gorge Bridge.

Fire department costs have been estimated at $107,804; policing, $57,940; administration, $32,000, and aid to unemployed, $109,000.

Advance Party Of Canadians Now In Korea

By BILL BOSS

SOUTHERN KOREAN PORT (CP)—Officers and men comprising the advance party of Canada's special force which is due in Korea in the near future arrived at this port Thursday.

They were the nastiest looking soldiers to hit this jaded war theatre since the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, arrived last Dec. 18.

The advance party, under Maj. Jack Prince of Oakville Ont., might have been mannequins out of an army quartermaster's dream shop window.

With their new-looking battle-dress still rich in pile and sharply pressed, shoulder flashes ablaze in brilliant red and yellow and beret badges gleaming in the strong spring sun, the troops were a treat for eyes accustomed to the drab workday turnout of the fighting men towards the north, at what is known locally as "the sharp end."

However, if experience is any criterion, they'll lose that "new look" smartly.

IN COURT

SAANICH

Robert Starkey, 3151 Orillia Street, pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Thursday to two charges of breaking and entering Saanich schools and committing thefts. His case was adjourned to April 26 for sentence.

He also pleaded guilty to a charge of retaining stolen goods.

Pleading guilty to seven charges of breaking and entering and theft at Saanich schools over almost a two-year period, Ian M. Mowat, 1330 Finlayson Street, had his case adjourned to April 26.

Roger Laverdure, 1107 Caledonia Avenue, charged with theft, was given suspended sentence. He was ordered by Magistrate H. C. Hall to provide a $500 bond to guarantee good behaviour for one year.

Pleading guilty to exceeding a 30-mile speed limit, Roy Sudday was fined $15. Leonard O. Reikki was fined $10 for speeding through a school zone. Gus Charles was fined $5 for parking without lights.

Seek Settlement Of Wage Request

Provincial government employees are pressing for an early settlement on their request for a 15 per cent across-the-board wage increase.

Officials said today they understand investigation by the government of the civil servants' request has been completed and results are being studied by a special committee of the cabinet.

"We do not know when the cabinet will reach a decision, but we expect to be called in when the government has formulated a policy," it was stated.

Civic Employees Consider Award

An across-the-board wage increase of 12½ cents an hour recommended in a unanimous report of the conciliation board Thursday on a dispute between the city and its outside staff will be considered by the latter at a meeting next week.

City Council will consider the award at Tuesday's meeting.

It's easy enough to find people's homes in Greater Victoria at night. All you need is a road map, a telephone directory, one of those trouble-shooting spotlights the B.C. Electric linemen have on their cars, two bloodhounds and the policeman on the corner. With that, and unlimited time, you can locate almost any house.

All the little tricks home builders try in order to discourage visitors won't work, if you persevere enough. They come close to success, though, by hiding the house numbers. House numbers should always be placed on the face of the house, just out of range of the porch light, so they aren't visible at night. Then all you have to do, if you're looking for someone, is to drive your car up to the street you've found on the road map, turn your spotlight on one of the house facades, where you may see the number, and compare it with the one listed in the phone book.

ONCE YOU'RE gained confidence that you're in the neighborhood, the rest is simple. You cruise up and down, finally park your car, take the flashlight from the glove compartment and start wandering along sidewalks, hunting for numbers. It's a pleasant little pastime, this numbers game, and quite legal, if you don't get pinched for loitering or being a Peeping Tom.

When you get a little tired, you pick up your bloodhounds, and let them sniff the gloves left at your home on a visit by the person you're trying to find. Now you're off on the trail. That phase of the search can last as long as the bloodhounds avoid stepping on their ears and rootin' themselves to one spot.

WHEN THEY'RE immobilized, you call a cop. You'll probably find him leaning on the fender of your car, where you parked it next to the fire hydrant before you started your search. Buy two tickets to the police ball from him, and he'll help you on the hunt.

Of course, it may be too late to visit when you find the place you're after, but your perseverance will be rewarded. You'll know next time, if your acquaintance doesn't move, and you'll have a sense of accomplishment.

It seems a pity, when you can have such good exercise and fun, that the city should come along with the idea of putting block numbers on street signs. Soon all the technique of finding a house will be gone. You'll just look at the sign numbers and the field will be narrowed right down to one block, if the system is made universal. Still, maybe the taxpayers can strike blow for sport and insist on civic economy through elimination of the new signs.

THE SAME THING could happen to the provincial government's expanding highway sign system. The public works department is putting names on creeks, bridges, and points of interest and is using patented Scotchlite to make them shine at night. It's getting so the mystery is evaporating. A guy, driving north, can almost tell where he is at any given time.

Some folk like the new signs. They say the names help to identify creeks and other scenic features whose identity they've always wanted to know. That's fine. It doesn't really eliminate exercise of the imagination, either. Once you know a place's name you can still let your fancy give it all sorts of significance it probably never had. You can't stop a man with an imagination.

THOSE SIGNS, and they've been stretching south from Duncan in the last week or two, are a joint project by the public works department and the districts in which they're placed. The government handles all the traffic markers, safety warnings and such, but the place names have to be sponsored by the people of the locality concerned.

The markers use white lettering on a black background, reversing the system that once applied.

In time they'll be joined by finger boards pointing to particular features. You'll be able to find out which mountain lies between the slopes of two hills just by looking at the boards. It's going to be educational and interesting. But while you're looking at them, don't forget the most important signs are the ones that tell you the hazards of the road. Ignore those and you won't need direction posts where you're going.

Conservation Expert Hails Water Benefits

"The west's greatest natural resource is water," George D. Clyde, chief of the division of irrigation, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Logan, Utah, told the 19th annual Western Snow Conference today in the Crystal Garden.

In a talk stressing benefits from snow surveys, Mr. Clyde pointed to the many current uses of water and explained the necessity for knowing well in advance the extent of each year's water runoff.

He told of measures taken to prevent a drought disaster in the U.S. in 1934 when snow surveys were able to predict the drought.

Mr. Clyde observed effects of excess runoff are not always bad. He said that last year, when a heavy runoff was forecast, two dry counties of Utah were put in crop for the first time and irrigated by flood water. The crop was worth $560,000.

WHEN THEY'RE immobilized, you call a cop. You'll probably find him leaning on the fender of your car, where you parked it next to the fire hydrant before you started your search. Buy two tickets to the police ball from him, and he'll help you on the hunt.

CITY MAILBOXES YIELD FISH, SOAP, BALL—LETTERS TOO

The Victoria Post Office today added two more incidents to its file of unusual reports:

1.—A fish, ball and bar of soap dropped in a city mailbox by a two-year-old, were retrieved.

2.—A hairdresser reported she tried to deposit a letter in a downtown area box. As she did so, a dozen or more letters fell from the jammed box and blew down the street. After half an hour she recovered them and posted them again.

On the other side of the ledger, the postal authorities received a pat on the back. G. A. A. Hebdon, Chamber of Commerce spokesman, said business men in general welcome the Post Office's new economy measures throughout the country.

Pinball Machine Charge Against Alderman Out

Charge of keeping a common gaming house against city Ald. Robert Macmillan and Erskine Anderson was dismissed by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today.

Dismissal was on the basis of an error in police officer's testimony, it was revealed.

Constable Raymond Thomas last week testified he won two free games on a pinball machine at Macmillan's Auto Court, operated by the alderman, and that the figure "2" appeared on the machine. The officer said he played one of the two games, and the figure 1 registered and that Anderson gave him five cents when he did not wish to play the machine again. Anderson was described as caretaker at the court.

Defence Counsel Arthur Dawe had claimed the number 1 would not register on the machine and the case was remanded to have the machine tested.

C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, said today the test showed that numeral would not appear and asked for dismissal of the charge in view of the error.

Magistrate Hall said it was obviously an error and that he could not take the constable's recollection of the conversation he said he had with Anderson.

Mission Worker Praises Korean Women Describes Advances Made In 50 Years

By ELIZABETH FORBES

"I would go back to Korea in a minute," Brig. Irwin said emphatically, "but as you know they are not allowing any women to return."

Brig. Irwin is a Salvation Army missionary from Korea, where she has worked since 1926. She was evacuated with other missionaries in 1940, returned again in 1947 and was again evacuated last year.

In recent months she has been lecturing in the United States on her work and also giving highlights of the evacuations. She left Victoria last night to continue her lecture tour in western Canada as far as Winnipeg.

"The picture I have to give is stark tragedy and I sometimes wish I could give it a brighter ending," she said, then sat quietly thinking for a moment. Suddenly her clear blue eyes opened wide and her whole face became animated.

"I can give you something of promise for this interview," she said, "and that is in the story of the Korean women."

"They have come a long way in the past 50 years," she said proudly, "and invasions and wars are not going to stop their progress."

SCHOOLS HELP

Much of the pioneer work in emancipation of Korean women, this Salvation Army worker tells you was done through Methodist, Presbyterian and United Church mission schools.

"When these missions went into Korea they established educational standards as well as spiritual," she said, "and it was their interest in the education of the women that started the ball rolling."

"Today, every girl in Korea has an education and all ages of women are interested in education."

Brig. Irwin pointed out that while the Salvation Army did not enter the educational field as did the other missions, they, too, have done their part in giving the women their present status.

She explained that the Salvation Army trains both women and men and treat the Korean man and woman as equals. They may both become commissioners just as men and women do in this country.

"We also take single women in for training and the fact that they now have public school and often high school education is all to the good," Brig. Irwin said.

WOMEN HEAD

"The cultured women of Korea are the equal of any in the world today," Brig. Irwin said with much pride and then went on to tell of Korean women heading departments in the Y.W.C.A., the W.C.T.U. and holding civic offices in their country.

"We still have a distinct divi-

Brig. Ada J. Irwin is wearing the everyday dress of a Korean woman, long slim skirt and loose, short-sleeved blouse called a chogoree. The gown was made for her in the Korean settlement at Tokyo, following evacuation from Seoul last year. "I had 45 minutes to reach the United States Embassy to board the plane that was taking us out," she said. "We left under fire, so you can realize there was no time or thought of taking any extra clothes."

"Women look after affairs that affect women and the men attend to affairs that affect men."

"The division line is distinct and is never crossed," she said, and then added with a quick smile, "quite different to our own country."

She also spoke of the two Korean women in the Korean cabinet. Dr. Helen Kim, president of the Methodist Women's University and holding degrees from several U.S. universities, who is a member of the cabinet and Miss Louise Lim, graduate of University of Southern California, who is Korea's representative with the United Nations at Lake Success.

"Korean women know now what they want," she concluded, "and you can be sure they will take a real and active part in the rehabilitation of their country."

Brig. Irwin was born in England, came to Canada as a very small child with her parents, spent two years in the Canadian war office overseas during the First World War, worked in Vancouver with the Dominion Peninsular Board for several years, then entered the Army college at Winnipeg in 1920 and has been in Army work ever since.

Coalition Must Continue E. C. Carson Says

"Despite criticisms and disagreements that have come up in our contract with the Liberal group, we must carry out the Coalition until the end of the present Legislature," Hon. E. C. Carson, Minister of Public Works stated when he spoke to the Victoria Women's Progressive-Conservative Association yesterday afternoon.

The cabinet minister declared himself solidly in favor of hospital insurance, pointing out that in 1948 prior to organization of the B.C.H.S., only 65 per cent of hospital bills were paid. "We did not charge enough in the beginning," was his criticism.

Mr. Carson defended the $118,000,000 budget, stating that increased responsibilities have come with industrial development of the province, necessitating larger expenditures.

Turning to his own branch of the government, Mr. Carson outlined briefly highway and public works construction since the end of the war.

"We have spent $100,000,000 in addition to regular maintenance costs, on building modern high ways and bridges since 1945," he said.

"There is nothing that will do this province more good than a modern system of main high ways."

Miss Lottie Bowron thanked the speaker and Mrs. Gordon Cameron presented him with a boutonniere of primroses, symbol of the Progressive-Conservative Party.

In the city from San Francisco is Miss Barbara Bate who will be maid of honor for her sister, Miss Joan Bate, whose marriage to Mr. Donald Crysdale takes place Saturday afternoon in St. Luke's Church. Formerly of Victoria, Miss Bate, who now makes her home in the California city, returns Sunday by plane.

Collect Wools—It was decided at a meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary, Canadian Legion, Salt Spring Island, to start a woolen pool with Mrs. J. Catto and Mrs. F. Sharpe in charge of collections. Wools will be sent away to be made into blankets. Mrs. Colin Mouat presided; treasurer reported $319.27 on hand; Mrs. B. Kropinski and Mrs. C. Sans were welcome for the "Night of Fun" in Mahon Hall on May 27.

LXIV

A strange thing was happening to Mr. Dukes. Perhaps it was something about the simplicity with which Letty had greeted him. He had visualized, from Caroline's description of the girl, a very different personality. Caroline, he realized, had not intended that he should meet her—not, at any rate, until much later.

There was a streak of obstinacy in Mr. Dukes. It had, in the past, been the cause of some quite violent quarrels with his partner, who was also an obstinate man. Looking at Letty now, talking gaily and contentedly about the day's events, he began to make up his mind about something.

Why should Caroline (who succeeded, he imagined, in getting her own way about most things) have her own way this time? Why shouldn't Letty Merridew have her dancing display after all? And if the date did happen to clash with the date already arranged by his partner, Mr. Ambleside, why, for once in his career, should it not be Mr. Ambleside who must give way?

"I only hope," Miss Merridew was saying, "that we'll be able to arrange a display worthy of your theatre, Mr. Dukes."

"Having met you, Miss Merridew—even so briefly—I've little doubt of it."

Despite the glance of disapproval from the taller of the two naval officers, Mr. Dukes did not feel at all disturbed. It had not been entirely an empty compliment.

Seven energetic and assorted hands plucked the strings of seven violins. The rest of the orchestra paused, then added their own weight and subtlety to the "Pizzicato Polka." Yet so delicate were some of the passages that at the far end of the ballroom nothing could be heard but the sound of hundreds of dancing feet and the answering swish of silken crinolines.

"Pitapat-pat, apit-apit-pat" went the feet, and the whole assembly went hopping and tripping in a merry circle around the room.

For this, the Queen's Birthday Ball, they had put on their best and most glittering clothes. And both the navy and the Legislature had provided, in the big assembly room of the Parliament Buildings, a worthy setting for them. So that the brilliant gathering moved beneath a sea of flags, under imposing chandeliers formed by three gleaming clusters of extended swords. Flowers, beautiful enough, many of them, to have done justice to Buckingham Palace itself, banked the orchestra, the doorways, the staircase beyond. And outside the building, from tree to tree down to the water's edge and above the moonlight lawns, were strung a thousand colored lanterns.

Letty, in the white ball gown again (Amelia had insisted that it be regarded as a gift) but with new long white gloves she had purchased for the occasion, felt buoyantly, unquenchably happy. Jervis, in whose arms she was now dancing around the room, had bought her, and sent to the room at the St. Nicholas Hotel (where she was spending the night with Molly Langley) a wreath of white gardenias, and the little wreath now in her hair, whiter than ever admist its copperbush shadows.

It was the first gift he had given her, and she was surprised when she received it, to find how much the gesture meant to her.

Molly had startled her at the hotel with "Any time now he must declare himself!" And the remark kept repeating itself to her with disturbing insistence . . . so that she could no longer brush aside the final argument with her own conscience.

Whoever was right or wrong, the engagement between Jervis and Caroline Murray would have become an accomplished fact—but for her. For months she had tried to make amends for that by keeping herself in the background, even against his insistence—so that if, with time to think, he should realize that he still loved Caroline, he could return to her freely and without dissension. But as she had grown to know him better; to understand him more, she had begun to see that Caroline could offer him little that would really satisfy; little that would outlast the years in front of him.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Right of course is always right.
Having naught to do with might.
—Old Mother Nature.

Farmer Brown's boy sat on the shore of Robinson Crusoe's Island down in the Land-of-always-summer where he was spending the cold months that in the North are called winter.

Of course down there is no winter. It is summer all the time. He was watching some of the new acquaintances he had made, feathered folk who never come north, and perhaps one or two who, like himself, were just spending the winter there.

He had watched Brown Booby catch their breakfast of fish. They had caught all they could eat and now, being of those wise folk with whom enough is enough, they were resting on the water.

Presently he saw Grandpa Pelican coming. He knew him when he was still a long way off. He knew him by the way in which he was flying, his big broad wings beating the air with a few rather slow measured strokes, then held straight out and still while he glided as far as he could.

"He is sliding on the air just the way I used to slide on ice, only instead of running and sliding," chuckled Farmer Brown's boy.

"Whenever I see him sitting still he reminds me of a dignified old man, or at least one who is trying to look dignified. Even when he is flying he manages to look dignified. Oh, oh! That wasn't dignified."

Grandpa Pelican, who had been flying quite high above the water, had suddenly closed his wings and shot straight down head first into the water. A moment later he bobbed up. He had gone down facing one way and come up facing exactly the opposite way. Had he turned a somersault in the water? No!

Old Farmer Brown's boy was not for nothing that Grandpa Pelican had made that sudden undignified plunge. He had caught his breakfast. The bag beneath that big bill of his was full. He could see the tail of a fish sticking out from one side of that big bill. Grandpa Pelican threw back his head and opened his bill to toss a fish so that he could better swallow it. From just overhead there was a scream.

"Share! Share! Share!" screamed a sharp voice, and be-

Grandpa Pelican half lifted his big wings as if to give chase, then thought better of it.

Tommy the astonished eyes of Farmer Brown's boy that fish was snatched out of Grandpa Pelican's very mouth and Gullie the Gull was flying off with it. He paid no attention to it. It is doubtful if he even heard it. He had his breakfast and now he was intent on getting down where he could eat it in peace.

Grandpa Pelican half lifted his big wings as if to give chase, then thought better of it. Those big wings of his were grand for easy, comfortable flying, but they were of no use whatever against the swift wings of that pesky thieving Gull. So Grandpa Pelican folded them again, swam about aimlessly for a few minutes, then once more spread his wings and went flapping and sailing off to look for another fishing ground where he might hope to get a long delayed breakfast.

A sharp angry scream from high above caused Tommy to look up. He was just in time to see a big black bird come shooting down from high in the sky straight at Gullie the Gull. It was Swooper the Pirate, whom some folks call Frigate Bird and some call Man o' War Bird, who lives by plundering other birds like the true pirate that he is.

Gullie screamed and dropped the fish. Without pause Swooper shot down after it. Just before it reached the water he caught it in mid-air and without so much as a look at Gullie the Laughing Gull, who was doing anything but laughing, carried it off to eat at leisure.

"Now whose fish was that? Grandpa Pelican caught it. Gullie the Gull stole it. Swooper the Pirate carried it off and ate it. To whom did it really belong?" asked Farmer Brown's boy, talking to himself.

BRIDGE LESSON

When Sam Fry Jr. and Peter Leventritt won the Eastern States pair championship recently they showed that teaching orthodox bidding methods at the Card School hasn't made them forget how to hornswoggle their opponents with a change of pace.

Sam held the North cards of the hand shown today, and decided to make a psychic bid of one no-trump. Pete's response of two clubs was the Stayman Convention, asking the opening bidder to show a biddable major if he had one.

"Is that Stayman?" asked West. "Yep," said Pete. "Normal no-trumps," continued West. "Uh-huh," nodded Pete.

Meanwhile, Fry tried not to break out in a cold sweat. Leventritt had no way of knowing that the opening bid was a psychic, so his answers to West's questions were perfectly unsuspecting and honest.

Eventually West passed, and Fry passed with a dead pan. East now realized that there was a strong smell of herring in the air, but he couldn't think of any safe action to take. So he passed

Squabble Between Cabinet, Bevan May Be Renewed

LONDON (CP)—Relations between Labor Minister Bevan and his cabinet colleagues were believed once again strained today.

A bitter attack on the budget by the Socialist journal Tribune, edited by Bevan's wife and a friend, was blamed.

Some Members of Parliament suggested Bevan may consider afresh whether he can remain a cabinet member.

Bevan was recently involved in a squabble with the cabinet over the budget proposal of Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to make Britons pay for the state health service's false teeth and eyeglasses.

The Tribune today charged Gaitskell with causing labor disunity and said of his budget: "We have had to wait 20 years for a labor chancellor to win such warm approval in Conservative quarters. The fact is Mr. Gaitskell has delivered a frontal attack on the health service."

Killer Sought In North

Mother, Children Found Murdered

FOR RESOLUTION, N.W.T. (UP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police organized full-scale manhunt on the south shore of Great Slave Lake today for the rapists of an Indian woman and her two children.

Evidence was presented at a coroner's inquest at this remote outpost in the Northwest Territories that Mrs. Mary Norn, 32, was raped after she was shot five times in the face with a .22 calibre rifle. Her body was discovered sprawled half nude in a pool of blood in the family shack Wednesday.

Bodies of her daughter, Dorothy, 10, and her son, Ernest, five, were found in their beds.

INFANT HAS PNEUMONIA

A third child, an infant, was in critical condition in Fort Resolution Hospital. Police said he had contracted pneumonia in the unheated shack after lying beside the body of his slain mother "for some days" before neighbors investigated.

Mounted Police said they had no suspects, but every community in the sparsely settled area will be combed for clues.

Investigators theorized that the children recognized the killer and they were shot as he covered his trail.

The woman's husband, Sammy Norn, was in the hospital at the time of the shooting.
